Dear

I am writing in further reference to your inquiry as to a possible position with the Agency.

The office here with whose representatives you had a discussion was not able to find a suitable vacancy in which to use your experience, and they saw no prospect of such in the near future. Since your talk with them, therefore, we have had your resume reviewed thoroughly by other offices that might be interested. I am sorry to have to report that no opening exists at the present time.

As you are probably aware, the situation is complicated by the requirements of Public Law 53, which allows the Central Intelligence Agency to employ only a very small number of regular officers of any of the services who are retired for other than disability reasons.

I can assure you that your offer of service will be remembered by us should a possible vacancy occur.

We thank you for your interest and your patience during this period of consideration.

Sincerely yours,
